Why we do it.

From seed to store, the intersection of cannabis and real estate is inseparable. We understand that the strongest cannabis companies, with single or multi-state, vertically integrated businesses, have extensive capital needs. And when capital is critical, we believe real estate should be part of the solution – not the problem. Freehold provides strategic growth capital as the foundation for long-term mutual success.

How we do it.

Our Operator-First model relies on rigorous underwriting criteria to first identify the highest quality operating partners, and then identify the uniquely critical real estate assets that support their operations. With deep experience in real estate finance and corporate operations, the Freehold team is financing a high-quality portfolio of cannabis properties designed to deliver strong total returns and increase investor value.

What we do.

Freehold Properties offers real estate financing for cannabis companies. From industrial-scale cultivation and processing facilities to retail dispensaries, we provide bespoke capital solutions – for existing or development assets – so our operating partners can focus on executing their long-term business plans.
